Jonas Pannetier

Clinical Psychologist, trainer and Communication coach
Marseille, Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur, France

Summary

There are two main areas I can help you with: improving your personal balance and mental well-being, and reducing conflicts and misunderstandings in professional settings.

In the corporate world, many groups are now realising the importance of humanising the way they work and creating a supportive environment to get the best out of people. The question for them is often "how do I put this into practice?". Answering this question is when I can help; to investigate and understand what their needs are and create interventions, training sessions or coaching to help them reach their objectives.

In therapy, I strive to study and put into practice ways in which the experience of healing and well-being can be linked to experience of nature and "natural" time, for example through gardening practices. I also am very interested in the therapeutic potential of writing and music, with a specific focus on Rap or Slam poetry.
